There are few artists on this planet that can achieve the same power and intensity of spirit within their music than Cadence Spalding, the very essence of all she creates is stepped in a deep senses of oneness, awareness and beauty.

Her latest single Black Canyon is a sublime release, it utilises such a memorable integration of styles of music, with a mystical and mournful Native American styled flute segment, new age music motifs, and an almost cinematic piano that depicts such a depth of colour and passion, all in this, her latest work.

Black Canyon is one of those singles that you could listen to on repeat for days and still be deeply moved by what you have just heard, how can I not recommend something as so utterly glorious as this.
