If you have been looking for something vibrant and empowering to blast away the blues, then you need to look no further than See Me Now by Cadence Spalding.

The artist has been a constant name in the singles chart for months now, and I don't see that changing anytime soon, and that's a truly good thing as the singer has taken the vocal branch of the new age industry and shaken it to its core.

See Me Now is a fast paced up-tempo composition that contains a really driving narrative of tone to do exactly what it says on the can.

In my view she has done it again, I cannot envisage this powerful song failing to impress the fans and listeners; Spalding must surely be chart bound once more.
